

POST-COVID TREATMENT AND STRENGTHENING

of immunity after respiratory diseases

This convalescence treatment program is aimed at supporting and strengthening the immune system after suffering from respiratory diseases and post-covid conditions . The treatment is aimed at optimizing digestive processes and restoring balance in the body through a drinking cure and a procedure called oxygen therapy. Inhalation of the medicinal oxygen increases the level of oxygen in the blood and affects cell regeneration. Drinking thermal springs comprehensively interferes with the management of the organism, leads to the adjustment of disturbed metabolism. In addition to the fact that regular drinking of thermal springs leads to mechanical cleansing of the body, hot springs cause blood circulation and relaxation of the mucosa, calm the mobility of the stomach and intestines and thus better absorption of minerals contained in water and start proper metabolism.
